

A Romance of Serendipity

Words by Eric Martoyo; Music by Alvin Anggakusuma & Eric Martoyo; Arranged by Alvin Anggakusuma & Fadhil Indra

I opened my eyes on the quiet new day feeling gloomy inside
The dew and breeze of the morning couldn't tell me what was going on
I looked up the sky that brought me the wings of time
I saw her face without a smile

Chorus:

She was the sunshine of my life and the moonlight of the night
It was a misery to make her feel like the second best in my life

I met her by coincidence and it was serendipity
We fell in love at first sight and the rest was just like a movie
She said, "You're my soul mate" and kissed me on the lips
And I said, "You're the love of my life"
How sweet, so sweet...

Chorus:

She whispered through my eyes, "It's time to say goodbye"
"I have walked through the tunnel but I still can't see the light"
A thousand words won't bring her back into my life
I don't know what to do

Music:

"Let me forget how to forgive you and leave this all behind"
"Please forgive me for not forgiving you and let me go away"
Tears were rolling down her cheeks as she walked away
She turned her head and then she vanished into thin air
(You are still my soul mate) the love of my life

Narration:

I didn't know how much I love her until the day... I lost her